Hello Samantha,

Thanks for the information. I will try to get receipts but my Spanish is limited. Is a piece of hand written paper sufficient?

Can you explain the "as long as I see fit". The dinghy is the only thing I believe would be of value to anybody unless they know what they are doing. Then maybe the mast and the new 200 ft anchor chain. I doubt that the navigation equipment is of value at this moment. The VHF was broken before arrival. So was the Raymarine GPS.

In case the boat is a total write off will it then be the outfit that is assigned by the insurance company to take over all responsibilities?

Thank you,
Martin
